

Some Origami Symbols to help understand diagrams

In origami diagrams there are lines that show where and in which direction to fold the paper:

----- A dashed and dotted line shows that the indicated fold is a "mountain" fold.

----- A dashed or 'broken' line shows that the indicated fold is a "valley" fold.

The arrows in diagrams indicate in which direction to fold the paper:

Fold the paper where shown.

This usually is a valley fold but can be used for other folds as well.

Fold behind, i.e. make a mountain fold.

Fold and unfold, creating a crease line.

Fold behind (mountain fold) and unfold, creating a mountain crease line.

Turn the paper or the model over.
